What is a thematic inspection?

The purpose of a thematic inspection is to drive quality improvement. Service providers are expected to use any learning from thematic inspection reports to drive continuous quality improvement which will ultimately be of benefit to the people living in designated centres.

Thematic inspections assess compliance against the National Standards for Residential Care Settings for Older People in Ireland. See Appendix 1 for a list of the relevant standards for this thematic programme.

There may be occasions during the course of a thematic inspection where inspectors form the view that the service is not in compliance with the regulations pertaining to restrictive practices. In such circumstances, the thematic inspection against the National Standards will cease and the inspector will proceed to a risk-based inspection against the appropriate regulations.

What is 'restrictive practice'?

Restrictive practices are defined in the Health Act 2007 (Care and Welfare of Residents in Designated Centres for Older People) Regulations 2013 as 'the intentional restriction of a person's voluntary movement or behaviour'.

Restrictive practices may be physical or environmental¹ in nature. They may also look to limit a person's choices or preferences (for example, access to cigarettes or certain foods), sometimes referred to as 'rights restraints'. A person can also experience restrictions through inaction. This means that the care and support a person requires to partake in normal daily activities are not being met within a reasonable timeframe. This thematic inspection is focussed on how service providers govern and manage the use of restrictive practices to ensure that people's rights are upheld, in so far as possible.

Physical restraint commonly involves any manual or physical method of restricting a person's movement. For example, physically holding the person back or holding them by the arm to prevent movement. Environmental restraint is the restriction of a person's access to their surroundings. This can include restricted access to external areas by means of a locked door or door that requires a code. It can also include limiting a person's access to certain activities or preventing them from exercising certain rights such as religious or civil liberties.

About this report

This report outlines the findings on the day of inspection. There are three main sections:

- What the inspector observed and residents said on the day of inspection
- Oversight and quality improvement arrangements
- Overall judgment

In forming their overall judgment, inspectors will gather evidence by observing care practices, talking to residents, interviewing staff and management, and reviewing documentation. In doing so, they will take account of the relevant National Standards as laid out in the Appendix to this report.

This unannounced inspection was carried out during the following times:

Date	Times of Inspection	Inspector of Social Services
Monday 9 September 2024	10:00hrs to 16:15hrs	Mary Veale

What the inspector observed and residents said on the day of inspection

This was an unannounced focussed inspection on the use of restrictive practices. Residents were supported to live a good quality of life in this centre. Restrictive practices in use had been identified, risk assessed and only used to promote the wellbeing, independence and safety of individual residents. There was a person-centred culture of care in the service and the use of restrictive practices had significantly reduced over the past number of years.

Pattersons Nursing Home is a single storey building situated near the village of Roscrea in Co. Tipperary. The centre is registered for 24 beds. The centre provides long-term, convalescence, palliative and respite care. On the day of inspection there were 21 residents living in the centre. The environment was homely, clean and decorated nicely.

The inspector observed residents in various areas throughout the centre, for example some residents were having their breakfast in their bedrooms in the morning, and some residents were walking in corridors. The atmosphere was relaxed and calm. The inspector observed that a small number of residents were in their rooms on the day of inspection. Some residents had their bedroom doors closed and privacy screens were in use in the shared rooms. Staff were observed discreetly assisting residents and knocking on doors before entering bedrooms.

Residents' bedrooms were clean, tidy and had personal storage space. Bedrooms were personal to the resident's containing family photographs, and personal belongings. The centre was suitably and comfortably decorated with many homely features. On the day of inspection refurbishment works were underway in the centre to upgrade the bedrooms.

The design and layout of the centre did not restrict the residents' movement. The inspector observed residents in the centres communal areas. There was a choice of communal spaces. For example; a dining room, a large lounge area and a visitors room.

Residents' had access to an enclosed garden area to the rear of the building which was easily accessible. This area had a canopy cover, artificial grass on the floor, garden tables and chairs, and an outdoor heater. The provider had installed Perspex sheeting to the fence surrounding the garden area which provided a safety barrier so as residents could not climb the fence without restricting the residents enjoying the scenic countryside view.

There was a courtyard in the centre of the building which was used as a designated smoking area for residents. This area was freely accessible to residents who wished to smoke. The inspector spoke with a person who used the smoking area. The resident said that they could have a cigarette at any time of their choosing and their cigarettes and lighter were kept in a secure area for their safety.

As the centre was situated adjacent to a busy main road, there was a key- lock used to access the front entrance door due to a few residents at the high risk of elopement. This risk was regularly assessed and reviewed in the centre's restrictive practice and risk register, and it was included as part of the quarterly notifications submitted to the Office of the Chief Inspector. All other entrance doors had key-pad access. The inspector observed that the physical environment allowed for care to be provided in a non-restrictive manner. Residents were seen mobilising independently and with the use of mobility aids around the centre throughout the day.

Residents told the inspector that they were consulted with about their care and about the organisation of the service. Residents said that they felt safe in the centre and their privacy and dignity was respected. Residents told the inspector they liked living in the centre and that staff were always respectful and supportive. Residents told the inspector that their call-bells were answered promptly and they were content and well looked after in this centre.

Staff were observed providing timely and discreet assistance, thus enabling residents to maintain their independence and dignity. Staff were familiar with residents' individual needs and provided person-centred care, in accordance with individual resident's choices and preferences.

There was adequate supervision of residents with staffing levels on the day of inspection suitable to the assessed needs of the residents. Staff were supported to perform their respective roles with ongoing mandatory and additional training. Staff whom the inspector spoke with were aware of practices that may be restrictive, for example, low beds, lap belts and bedrails. Staff were very knowledgeable of the individual and person-centred needs of each resident.

Residents were very complimentary of the home cooked food and the dining experience in the centre. Residents stated that the quality of the food was very good. Residents told the inspector that they could have breakfast in their bedrooms if they wished. The inspector observed the dining experience at dinner time. The dinner time meal was appetising, well presented and the residents were not rushed. Staff were observed to be respectful when offering clothes protectors and discreetly assisted the residents during the meal times. Residents were observed chatting and laughing with staff and fellow residents throughout the meal time experience.

Arrangements were in place for residents to feedback and contribute to the organisation of the service. Residents told the inspector that the person in charge and staff were always available to them and were responsive to their needs and requests. In addition to this informal feedback, there were regular residents' meetings. Residents whom the inspector spoke with said that their family and friends could attend the centre any time. Residents were supported to access the SAGE advocacy and the national advocacy agency if required or requested.

Activities provided were varied, interesting and informed by residents' interests, preferences and capabilities. The inspector observed a group activity in the morning and a rosary recital taking place in the afternoon on the day of inspection. Residents told the inspector that they enjoyed daily group activities such as exercises, and bingo. A number of residents told the inspector that they enjoyed a recent visit to a local pet farm. Residents were happy with the choice and frequency of activities. The inspector observed a number of residents leaving the centre with a staff member to go for a walk along a quiet lane way adjacent to the centre. Visitors were observed coming in and out of the centre throughout the day and told the inspector that they were always welcome and were assured of the care provided.

Oversight and the Quality Improvement arrangements

There was a positive approach to reducing restrictive practices and promoting a restraint free environment in this centre. The person in charge was familiar with the guidance and had been working with the nursing and care team to reduce and eliminate where possible restrictive practices. The centre had completed the self-assessment questionnaire and had developed a targeted improvement plan. Resources were made available for staff training and for equipment such as low to floor beds.

Staff had undertaken mandatory training in restrictive practice and in dementia awareness training. The inspector observed that staff were knowledgeable and applied the principles of training in their daily practice. As a result, the inspector observed that the outcomes for residents were positive and that staff and resident interactions were personal and meaningful, upholding the residents' fundamental rights while promoting their privacy and dignity.

A register of restrictive practices in use was maintained in the centre. 1 of the 21 residents had a bedrail in use. A restrictive practice resource folder was available for staff. The centre had a policy on the management of restrictive practices which was written in plain English and promoted the rights of residents. Restrictive practices were audited regularly. The centre had set up a multi-disciplinary restrictive practice committee. Restrictive devices were discussed at this meeting monthly and formally reassessed at a minimum of every four months or sooner if indicated.

Overall there were good governance structures in place with ongoing auditing and feedback informing quality and safety improvement in the centre. There was good oversight of safety and risk with active risks around restrictions identified and controls in place to mitigate these risks. Falls management was good in the centre. All incidents were recorded and investigated. Post falls protocol included immediate and appropriate management of the resident with neurological observations monitored for all unwitnessed falls.

Complaints were recorded on an electronic system and were robustly investigated. The registered provider had integrated the update to the regulations (S.I 628 of 2022), which came into effect on 1 March 2023, into the centre's complaints policy and procedure. The complaints procedure was clearly displayed in the centre and residents were aware of the process. A small number of complaints had been received in since the previous inspection in April 2024. All of these complaints were satisfactorily dealt with. Complaints and incidents were audited and trends identified and learning informed safety improvements in the centre.

Improvements were required to the documentation for restrictive practice. There was no bed rail assessment or bed rail review documentation recorded for the bed rail device in use, which was not in line with the centres policy. Improvements were required to the residents care plan as it did not provide detail on the interventions required with the use of the bedrail.

Overall, the inspector identified that management and staff in Pattersons Nursing Home were committed to promoting a restraint-free environment for residents. While opportunities for improvement were identified during the inspection, it was clear that residents enjoyed a good quality of life to the best of their abilities.

Overall Judgment

The following section describes the overall judgment made by the inspector in respect of how the service performed when assessed against the National Standards.

Substantially Compliant	Residents received a good, safe service but their quality of life would be enhanced by improvements in the management and reduction of restrictive practices.

The National Standards

This inspection is based on the National Standards for Residential Care Settings for Older People in Ireland (2016). Only those National Standards which are relevant to restrictive practices are included under the respective theme. Under each theme there will be a description of what a good service looks like and what this means for the resident.

The standards are comprised of two dimensions: Capacity and capability; and Quality and safety.

There are four themes under each of the two dimensions. The Capacity and Capability dimension includes the following four themes:

- Leadership, Governance and Management — the arrangements put in place by a residential service for accountability, decision-making, risk management as well as meeting its strategic, statutory and financial obligations.
- Use of Resources — using resources effectively and efficiently to deliver best achievable outcomes for people for the money and resources used.
- Responsive Workforce — planning, recruiting, managing and organising staff with the necessary numbers, skills and competencies to respond to the needs and preferences of people in residential services.
- Use of Information — actively using information as a resource for planning, delivering, monitoring, managing and improving care.

The Quality and Safety dimension includes the following four themes:

- Person-centred Care and Support — how residential services place people at the centre of what they do.
- Effective Services — how residential services deliver best outcomes and a good quality of life for people, using best available evidence and information.
- Safe Services — how residential services protect people and promote their welfare. Safe services also avoid, prevent and minimise harm and learn from things when they go wrong.
- Health and Wellbeing — how residential services identify and promote optimum health and wellbeing for people.
